

Before Your Move or Renovation, Consider the Functionality of Your New Space

We understand that moving or renovating requires a large investment in time, energy, and resources. Yet a lack of planning can result in your new space being disorganized, dysfunctional, or simply too small. Our experienced team of interior specialists knows that moving or renovating is so much more than simply transferring your belongings from one place to another.

Bespoke storage spaces and organization provide the function and flow in your home that saves you precious time and energy and allows you to put your feet up and relax.

If brought into your building process early enough, our team will work directly with your architect or interior designer and provide architectural sketches. We will partner with your millworker and make design recommendations for how your closets should get built. All of this is to ensure that your closets and storage spaces function for you (as well as look beautiful!).

If we're brought in after construction, Changing Places will still provide recommendations for closet modifications and products that can be installed to better customize your storage areas to suit your needs.

Done right, your investment will take your home life to a new level of effortless organization and functionality. Whether it's your gourmet kitchen and pantry, your custom walk-in closet, your mud room, or your garage, we want your home to perform in a way that works for your family's lifestyle.
